MANJIMUP

THIS IS THE INSIDE BIT

Well issue 3 is in your hands. I enjoyed putting it together and I hope you enjoy reading it.

7 months has past since issue two, time flies so fast. 7 months ago I never thought I would be sitting here typing these words. What a downward spiral it's been since then.

First it was tendonitis (inflammation of the tendons) in my feet. That was some crazy pain there. Without warning pain would shoot through my feet like as if they were being hit by a hammer, at anytime. I would be sitting having dinner and all of a sudden, bam it would hit. Full on unbearable pain. Lasting about 2 minutes. It was so bad that I could not even walk properly. That took like 6 months to heal, though it didn't stop me from riding. Then 5 months ago I start getting pain in my left elbow. Didn't think much of it until it started to get worse. So bad that it hurt to even hold my grips. Now I had tendonitis in my elbow, commonly called tennis elbow. This was some serious shit. I could not even ride as the pain was too much. The doctor said that it could sometimes take up to a year to heal. Walking back from the ultrasound on my elbow I had to come to terms with the fact that he was right. I had to stop riding until it was healed. It was only going to keep on getting worse if I didn't. So I made my decision, no riding till its better.

So 3 months later my elbow is feeling good. The 3 months off my bike though had taken its toll on me. I started to question my mental state. I had become restless and disheartened. The one thing that I cherished the most was not with in my grasp. I found it hard to exercise due to my feet still not 100%. Walking around to much or even a short jog could render my feet back to a painful state. I was really suffering from "non riding depression"

With the new year approaching I knew that I was getting better and that I could start to ride soon, what a fool I was for thinking that. On the morning of new years eve I woke up felling really sick, like an all over the body sickness. It got worse over the day and by that night I was a total mess. Fever, sweats, shakes, I was really fucked up. At the same time my right knee had decided to start to swell. From previous experience I knew that it was bursitis (rupture of the fluid sack at the front of the knee cap) I was unsure how I had managed to do that but it happened. So off to the doctors to see if he could help get it sorted. I wanted to get riding and this bursitis was going to slow me down getting on my bike. The antiinflammatories he prescribed worked well and the swelling was on the way down. I started to go for short rides around the neighbourhood to see how my elbow was holding up. A good sign was that I could bunny hop without pain. But wait what the heck is this red mark on my knee. Why dose it hurt and why dose it look really angry. So on a Friday morning back to the doctor. Another ultrasound showed the fluid in my knee was turning to a jelly, becoming solid. But still some fluid was able to be removed for testing. I get a call from the doctor on Friday afternoon to say I have to come in and see him now. He confirmed with me that I have a Staphylococcus (golden staph) infection in the bursitis. What the fuck!!!!!! How the hell did that happen!!!!!! The doctor said I got to go NOW to Charlie Gardiner emergency department. I could not screw around. So I spent three days in hospital with a drip in my arm giving me antibiotics to get the infection under control. Its improving slowly but still along way to go.

I type this not knowing the future. The grasp on my ride is now even further away.

How long will the infection take to heal? Will I need an operation to fix the bursitis? Im unsure of when ill return to riding again. It's been 3 months and it could be another 3 months. And then ill have the rehabilitation of getting the knack of hitting up stuff again.

While I was in hospital the nurse came into see me and asked "Everything ok" I thought for a moment and replied "There is always someone worse off than you so I have no reason to complain"

This is true and I am not complaining. I know many riders who have been struck down for longer. I am merely showing how things can change so quickly.

Upon reading this I would like you the reader to understand that what ever you have right now don't take it for granted as at anytime everything could change. This has made me realize that the last time I rode my bike could be very well "The last time i rode my bike"

Do what ever it takes to allow you to ride tomorrow as you never know when it will be your last.

Untill then read the FN zine, be inspired to ride and do something for your scene is a small town about 300kms south of Perth. Like most small towns it has an amazing history. The towns name is made up from two aboriginal words "Manjin" meaning a special edible reed and "up" meaning meeting place.

MANJIMUP

The Crew

Brad Mas

The Pav Man

The district was first settled in 1856 near the present town site of Manjimup. For years the main industry was timber with the region hosting large forests of karri trees which at about 80 meters tall are some of the tallest trees in the world. During the 1950's Manjimup had a tobacco industry that was worth millions of dollars but this eventually fell away by the 1960's. Now the latest venture into farming is black truffles. They are a fungus that lives underground on the roots of oak trees. They smell really bad but apparently they taste great. But at about $1000 per kilogram im not sure I really need to get some.

John the man responsible

Brad

Morgan

Justin

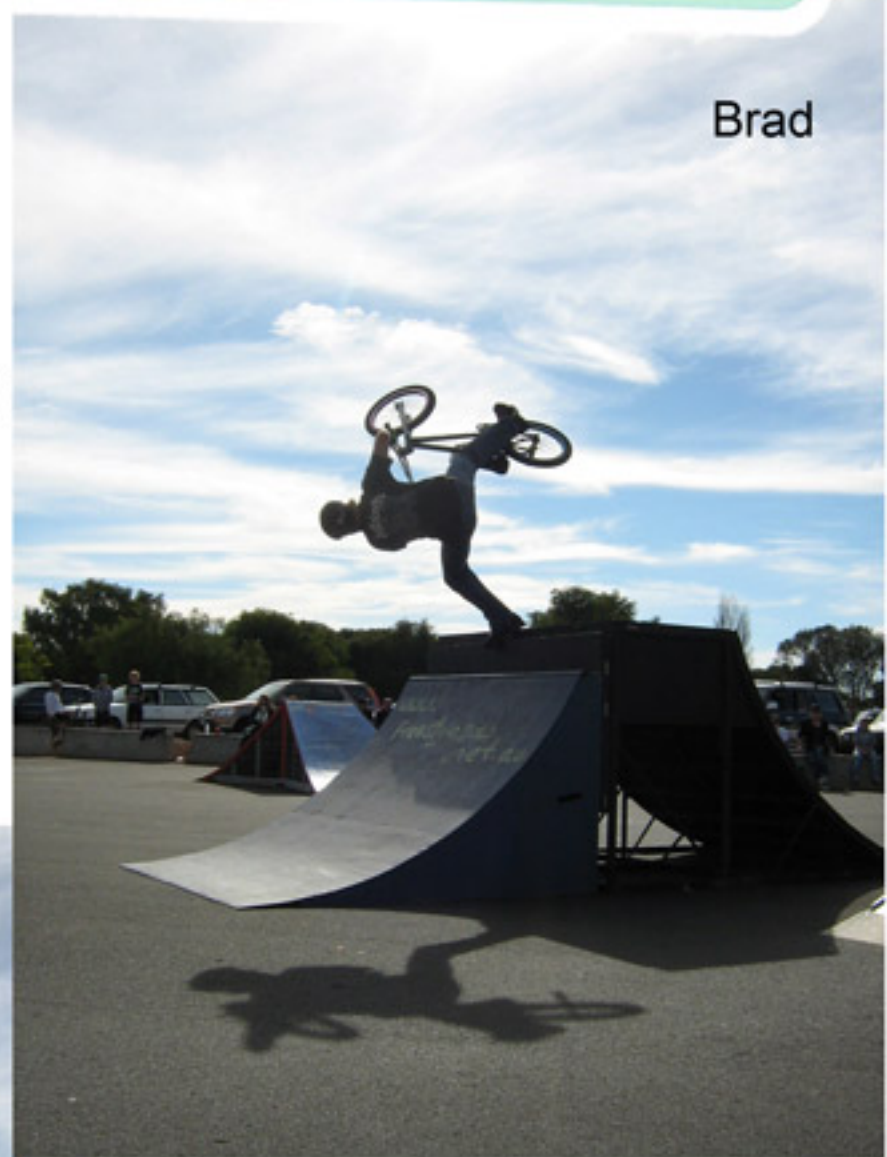

Manjimup is also home to many BMX riders. One in particular named Jon Graham who like most of us loves to pedal his bike around and ride on structures. Manjimup has got a skatepark but its not a good one. One of those crappy rampage semi portable things. The locals get to ride that all the time, how lucky for them. Well the locals want to do something to change that so what better way to kick things along than to have a jam to show the support for a new skatepark.

So on Saturday June 7th the Freestyle now ramps were hauled down to add more to the park and with support from Back Bone Bmx way over in Canberra that day took place. Lots of fun had by all. The local riders as well as some from the near by towns like Nannup and Bridgetown were there as well as riders from Geraldton, Perth and Busselton. Im sure it was Morgan from Geraldton that threw down a barrel roll to pedal grind on the landing ramp of the small rampage ramp.

Dylan

Brad

The pedal grind was by accident thou due to missing the landing but it was still pulled and claimed as the banger of the day. For his efforts on the day Morgan took home a brand new united squad frame from Back Bone Bmx. Killa was there on the day to enjoy the excitement as well as put some Killa product into the prize kitty.

I personally had a stack of fun and thanks to all who made the day as great as it was.

CALVIN

This is what transpired over the course of a few emails and myspace thingos. Calvin, to me comes across different from the norm bmx rider. no trends or tight jeans, his own style of riding which is always a great sight to see when i get to see him ride. An interview is suppose to be a way to get to know a bit about that person so over the next few pages i hope you get to have a bit more insight on who is Calvin

Is your name Calvin Kosovich?
Yes

What other name would you like to have?
George Michael's

Are you older than 16years but younger than 19years?
Yeah

What was it that made you want to start BMX riding?
Sick of pushing around skateboards.

How much time do you spend a week riding your bike?
Saturday, Sunday and whenever i can get out after work.

Who do you currently live with?
Parents

Who would influence you to act like an idiot?
The bottle and Lindsey Lohan.

What is your most favourite piece of furniture?
Leather sofas.

Why do you have your bike set up the way you do?
Keeps it rolling fast.

What is the best thing that you can remember from when you were 10 years old?
Washing windows at Carine shopping centre.

What was the most money you got for washing windows at one given time?
Carine shops year 6 i think it was about 15 bucks

Who inspired you to start riding and stay with it?
All my riding buddies at Carine

Please tell us about your best day riding so far. ?
Any day in summer riding through the coastal areas is pretty much the best.

To what amount of exertion do you go through to earn some money each week?
Apprentice plumber keeps me cashed up till next pay day

Who do you rate as some of the best riders in west oz and why?
Tim Cawthorne, Jamie Mauri, Jamie warren pretty much ride with them every weekend there the boss! Dylan Matthews goes hard also.

What words of encouragement would you give to youngens getting in to BMX?
You see so much, meet so many people and it's always a good ride.

Ok so you know you have a big day ahead of you as you have got a great day planned with your mates, what would be the situation with sleep. Would you try to get a good nights sleep too have a good energy level or would you just party up with the hope you can ride all day long the next day?
Party it up and have a good day
I live my live by those rules.

What would be your most fave trick to be doing?
Nose wheelies, it's all about the flat land.

What's one trick you can't stand seeing Jamie warren do?
Hitting his face and watching him through his bike, anything else he does is the boss.

What's the best trick you like seeing Jamie warren do?
Back flipping out of a ground built trampoline.

CALVIN

If you're riding along and you see a one dollar coin on the road do you stop to pick it up or just keep on riding?

I tell milkcrate to pick it up and he does.

If you were to offered $600 a week for the next 5 years to ride nothing but flatland would you do it?

I would go insane, that's pretty much imprisonment!

What part of your bike would most likely make love to?

My bars are the sex at the moment. mutiny glams.

And would you use protection?

There's no need im ready for kids.

Who is your main competition?

Tim Cawthorne

Why?

We ride similar he's right foot and im left foot, its all about who can pull it first.

DEXTER SCORES

A SHORT STORY BY KARINA

In a typical country house, under a warm blanket Dexter laid sleeping. The air was crisp when the sun was just peaking over the horizon, once again on its way to lighten up the town of Tandembup.

When Dexter awoke from his dream state he looked around his room to see some of his favourite things. On the floor were his jeans, on the desk was the new CD by Social Distortion and on the back of his door was the poster of Jessica Alba from the sports illustrated swim wear magazine. He was in his comfortable surroundings and he felt at home. He fixed his eyes on a large poster. To Dexter this was not just any poster. He looked over it with much scrutiny. He studied the backdrop. The movement portrayed in the poster. How it was possible to be in that position for a photo to be taken? He looked at that poster for what must have been almost an eternity but he looked at that same poster every day with the same thoughts. It was an icon in the eyes of Dexter, Garry Buckingham, the factory pro BMX rider that he always wanted to meet.

There was a loud knock on his door but it was not the sound of his mums knock. The door opened and bursting through was the group of people that he called his mates. As Gazza, his best mate approached Dexter's bed he bleated "Oi get up ya loser it's Sunday. What ya still doing in bed, we got some ridin' to do, cum on man get ya hand off and lets get to it."

Dexter told him in an unfriendly way to go away as Gazza ripped off Dexter's blanket. Bazza and Minky as usual were going through his things in his room. Standing in the door way glancing at Dexter was Sally. She had a smirk on her face as Dexter pulled his blanket back on. The events that transpired in Dexter's room were nothing but predictable.

As the crew was eating breakfast the chemistry between Sally and Dexter showed. The guys always thought that Dexter and Sandy should be together, but he was always too focused on his bike riding to see that. "Right lets make a wheel and roll out of here." Dexter remarked as he put his dishes in the sink. He packed his backpack with stuff and made for the door, but was stopped by his mum. "Take that to the bin as you go out sweetie, have a good day. Love you" as she went to kiss him on his cheek.

No sooner did they leave the front door when Gazza said "Your mums so cool, I wish my mum was like yours"

"When did you see your mum last" remarked Sally

"About a year ago, fat bitch don't care about anything but money" replied Gazza

"Yeah Dexy your mum's hot id do her" stated Bazza

"Har, your hand wouldn't even do you" came back from Minky

As they started riding their bikes down the streets they talked about all the latest things that the big pro riders were doing. Minky always thought that Dexter could become a factory pro. Being self conscious always seemed to have a negative effect on his outlook, it prevented him from being the rider he knew he should be. Being a Sunday the group of riders always rode the streets early to avoid the cops, cars and people. It was a free ride with no problems.

As usual Dexter was going off with all sorts of tricks and when they all hit up the famous Grand wall it was Dexter that busted out a 540. Bazza had always wanted to get that trick but could only manage to get a 360. Sally pulled one of the longest manuals that the group had seen her do, right down the middle of the main street.

Once they finished their street session, they made their way through the streets of Tandembup to Bibs Beach. It was known as the spot and the local hang out for all bike riders. The local skate park was nearby and the beach was ideal for the surfers. This also was an ideal spot to look at the babes. Bobby's Bikes was the local bike shop. Dexter had a hook up with Bobby to get some free parts from time to time. As they approached the shop they saw on the window a poster advertising a big competition taking place at the skate park in a couple of months. The poster also stated that factory scouts would be there from Echo bikes and the winner of the comp would win a signed Garry Buckingham signature bike. Minky and the rest of the group were really keen to get signed up, but Dexter's wasn't to sure. Once again his self doubt got the better of him. "You're such a knob-end for not wanting to enter. I mean you're heaps good and I reckon you'll win." Said Sally with criticism.

The group made a huge fuss out of the situation as they tried to persuade Dexter into signing up. Red Dog and his mate Walter were rolling their way down the street to see what all the commotion was about. Red dog was a good rider but his attitude was horrid. This caused most of the town riders to stay clear of his path. "Wad up?" announced Bazza as he flicked his head up.

"Wad are you lookin' at, stocker?" Red Dog snarled as he pushed his way through.

"You goin' to enter the comp?" asked Dexter.

"Wad do a care? Of course I have your lookin' at the new champ." Red dog replied and he and Walter rode off.

The group went inside to see Bobby. "Yo Bob sup. Can I get sum new grips mate. Bobby told Dexter that he should enter the comp. Dexter's reply was, "I don't think im good enough." Then Bobby noticed Dexter's bike and that he indeed needed new grips. "Ill give you a pair of new grips, but Im entering you in the comp." Bobby told Dexter.

"Ill think about it ok." Replied Dexter

The group headed to the skate park. They were riding there for awhile and the entire group were pulling out awesome tricks. Red Dog and Walter were also riding at the skate park, but they were set up on the other side. Bazza thought that was for the best.

Look some newbie is talking to red dog" stated Sally

No sooner had they all noticed when they saw the rider riding away from Red dog. Bazza went for a ride over to the newbie and asked "Sup bro not see you here before you new ay. What's ya name"

"Hi in Aaron and yeah im new, got my bike for my 13th birthday a month ago, I was just asking that guy over there if he could help me with a tail tap and he just told me to *#?@ off and not to bother him as he's got his own riding to do"

"Hey im Barry but everyone calls me Bazza come over and ill introduce you to the others we might be able to help you learn a few new tricks"

As the day progressed Red Dog was ripping up the skate park with some awesome tricks. The newbie Aaron had tail taps on lock and was starting to learn 360's and disasters. Bazza thought if Aaron was riding like this then he could enter the junior division of the comp.

DEXTER SCORES

As the afternoon rolled on more and more younger riders were turning up and getting in Red Dog's way, so he dealt with this in his own Red Dog way by yelling at them and shouting insults at the young kids. One young kid ended up in tears and this resulted in a very disturbing set of events. The kid's dad came over to let Red Dog know what he thought of him. Minky thought she would have to call the police to break things up as things started to get that out of hand but as the kid's dad seemed to be the better person he let it go. Dexter and everyone at the skate park and some parents were sickened by his behaviour. The mood at the park after was crap and no one wanted to ride any more. Their thoughts were to keep a distance from the image Red Dog had.

Over the next few weeks the group were riding at some local skate parks and learning some new tricks. They were at the spot chilling out together and they asked if Dexter was entering into the comp, but Dexter still doubted himself. The group also had a few run ins with Red Dog and Walter, with his attitude and aggression. They all talked amongst themselves about how good a rider Red Dog was but he was a real dickhead of a person. Dexter went to see Bobby to get his opinion on if he should enter the comp.

"Dexter I believe in you. You should believe in yourself, stop all this self doubt stuff. It's a wonder how you ever got so good on a bike. You believe in your bike riding don't you, I mean your one of the best riders in the district" queried Bobby

"Yeah" replied Dexter slowly

"So put that same though process into every thing else man! You can get and do what ever you want. Do you think that I just happened to open up a bike shop just like that! Man I had to work for it and believe in what I was doing was the right thing. You know what im talking about"

"Yeah you're right Bobby glad I had this convo, count me in for the comp, im going home" said Dexter

"Say hi to your mum for me" called Bobby from the door of the shop

The day of the comp had arrived and the group got up at 6am to hit the streets early, for practice. Dexter was ripping up the grand wall with a 540. Sally was doing no handers of the bank and Bazza was doing Spiderman's on the gate. Minky thought that the day would be great once they had arrived at the skate park. The vibe that was happening there was awesome. Some factory pros were there. Dexter could not believe it when he saw Gary Buckingham, who was sitting down chatting to another pro Tony Page. The group saw Red Dog and Walter hanging out with some girls and they were laughing about some of the junior riders. The group of friend spied Bobby on the other side of the park, he had set up a small stall of stuff from his shop. The group headed over to him. Bobby told Dexter that he had entered him into the comp and that he had a bobby's bikes shirt for him to wear. Dexter was still unsure about it, but thought about the conversation he had with Bobby a few nights before. Bobby told Dexter that the factory scouts from Echo bikes were there looking for new talent to go on tour with the teams and that the winner would be the one who would get that chance. Bazza and Minky went over to speak to Aaron who had entered in the junior division. Aaron had been practicing every day and is pumped up for the comp. Red Dog and Walter were both practicing. They were ripping it up big time and Red Dog was going of like a ham in the sun. All the riders in the comp had a practice run there were a few crashes but nothing serious.

The junior riders were up first and Dexter and the group watched them and saw that Aaron had gotten a lot better since they first meet him a few months ago. Aaron look liked he could win the junior class. Bazza was one of the first riders up in the senior class. He started his run with some basic tricks before he moved into some harder stuff. His turndown over the spine was a great trick and got a lot of cheer from the crowd. He picking up some speed for a superman; he glided in the air like the real thing. He also pulled the best icepick grind on the rail and he finished his run with a tail tap. Walter had a run but he really could not do much. A few grinds and a few airs but that was about it. Minky turned to the others and said, "That guy is such a poser." There were other riders taking there turns, but it was the same old thing and nothing special took place. In Sally's run she pulled out a long manual all around the large bowl to a 180 into the flat bank. Minky did some great 360's in the air and Gazza did a nice back flip which had the crowd on its feet.

Dexter was the second last rider for the comp. When the judges called his name out he was weak in his knees, but he knew he could do if he believed in himself. He rode up and his run began, he started with a basic bunny hop into the flat bank he picked up speed and did an ally oop peg grind on the vert wall. He did a back flip no hander a turndown over the spine with enough hight to get his own air space from the air force. Dexter was thinking about what trick he should pull out for the crowd. He didn't think about it he just did it, a double tail whip over the jump box. With the crowd cheering and social Distortion blasting out of the P.A. system Dexter was fully pumped up. The vert wall was in front of him so he went for it and tried to get the 540 wall ride but he spun to fast and he thought he was going to bail hard but he hung on tight and ended up getting all the way around for a 720. No one could believe it, not even Dexter himself. He had the best score from the judges yet. He went off the skate park and met his mates who all welcomed him with smiles and praise. Bobby came up and gave him a high five and then Dexter turned around and saw Garry Buckingham walking up to him. "Dude that was a total awesome run man. It was so liquid man, sweet as ay". "Thanks" Dexter replied.

Then Red Dogs name was called out over the P.A. He was the last rider of the day. He started his run with a banger of a trick. Front flip over the box, amazing pulled clean. He attacked the skate park with so much speed that he was airing out of every thing. Tail whips, bar spins, tuck no handers and 360 table tops were just some of the tricks that Red Dog was getting done. Dexter knew that he had to have been beaten by Red Dog as his riding was well and truly much better that his.

The comp was over and every one was waiting to hear the results. Aaron had placed fourth in the junior class and every one was happy that he did. As the results were read out for the senior class the crowd was silent. Sally had placed 9th, Minky took out 7th, Gazza placed a great 4th and Bazza was so stoked to place 3rd. Who was the winner? Dexter knew that it had to be Red Dog. Bobby kept saying that Dexter was going to be 1st. The announcer waited and got the crowd amped up before the final placing's were called. "2nd place goes to," there was a long pause. "Dexter", So the winner is none other than the Red Dog. All right!"

DEXTER SCORES

The group of friends were stoked with the placings, Sally was the first to congratulate Dexter. Dexter went up to collect his trophy and his prizes followed by Red dog, who had won the Garry Buckingham signature bike. Garry Buckingham was there to hand out the prizes to all the riders and signed Red Dog's new bike. Dexter went back to his group and to Bobby and they all started talking about the comp and the tricks. "Well I suppose Red dog will get to go on tour now hey?" Gazza said

"Don't be too sure about that" said Bobby as he pointed to Red dog who was now throwing his helmet around and swearing very loudly. Garry Buckingham was walking away from Red dog, shaking his head. He approached the group and said, "What is it with people and bad attitudes it sucks to see that in this sport, I hate that stuff."

"He's always like that" explained Sally

"So Dexter I was wondering if you would like to come on tour with Echo bikes and get yourself a new ride?" Garry asked Dexter.

Dexter could not believe it. "But I didn't win"

"Yeah! But you're a well better rider than that idiot over there." exclaimed Garry while motioning to Red dog.

The next few weeks were a blast for Dexter and his friends. Bobby was so proud of Dexter that he had his trophy right on the counter in his store. The group meet Red dog a few times at the skate park and he seemed to have changed his attitude and was helping out some of the younger riders. He was even talking to one of the parents there as well. Bazza could not believe the change in him. He even said hello to the group of friends as he rode past them.

There was a large black bus pulling up at the skate park. It was the tour bus and it was here to pick up Dexter. Garry Buckingham and Tony Page had got their bikes out and were riding with the locals. As they were packing up all the bikes a few young riders came up to Dexter and asked for his autograph. Dexter was stoked. Dexter's mum, Bobby and his friends were all there to wish him well on the tour especially Sally. Dexter and Sally had been hanging out quiet a bit since the comp. Their friends could see the chemistry really building between them now.

"When I get back you wanna go out some time" Dexter asked Sally as he stopped on the steps of the bus.

"Sure why not it's not every day I get to go out with a big time factory pro" replied Sally with enthusiasm

Dexter jumped back off the steps of the bus and leaned forward towards Sally. He was about to kiss her when Gazza let out an almighty massive fart and broke that romantic silence that was building.

"Cop a lode of that, that going to be a stinker for sure" Gazza remarked with pride. Tony Page poked his head out of the window and said "come on Casanova get on the bus we got some travelling to do"

The bus rolled away from the skate park leaving every one, particularly Sally waiting for the Dexter to return.

I Hit Up A Kerb

Just a few more cranks to go
I see the top of the hill
Made it
Start pedalling, faster and faster
Shit what would happen if my chain snapped

Speed

Tucked in now and rollin down the hill
Even more speed
Needing to turn soon

Turn into the next street, still tucked in, still got speed.
Street ending and gotta hook left
Still got the speed up and still tucked in Lean left
I see a drive way and a kerb
Hell yeah that's got a bit of a kicker on that kerb
Still tucked in but speed is slowing
Kerb is getting closer
Eye it up
Loft
Air time
Distance travelled
Tires hit the road
Hella pumped

Still got a bit more pedalling to go till im home
Just a few more cranks to go

THIS IS THE BACK COVER OF THE FN ZINE TURN OVER AND LOOK AT THE FRONT

but before you do look at check out French Michael who visited our sunshine state busted out mad skills and loved the FN zine so much he could not let it go, even while rippin up crackpackers
